Why such a course?

Australia, like much of the world, is at a critical moment in its history.

Of the many challenges that we face none is more important than that of making this society one which values and nurtures its rich cultural and religious diversity.

In this, Australia's Muslim communities, representing one of the world's great religious traditions, have much to contribute. Muslims have been integral to Australia's development since early settlement.

In recent years much has been said about a looming 'clash of civilisations' between Islam and the West. The 'war on terror' is being fought mainly in nations where Islam is the majority religion. Australian Muslims have themselves been subjected to powerful pressures and often less than flattering media attention.

There is a need for young Muslim leaders to emerge who can speak clearly and confidently about the various issues which confront people of Islamic faith in Australia today, and who can participate fully in shaping Australia's future.

What will this Course do?

- It will empower young Muslim men and women and help them to reach their full potential as citizens and future leaders
- It will develop the skills that young Muslims need to engage confidently and creatively with all levels of government, business, academia, the professional world, the media, and religious and community organisations
- It will give course members the opportunity to meet and talk with decision makers in Canberra, Sydney and Melbourne - this will include visits to the state and federal parliaments, universities, the courts, media networks, churches, temples and synagogues
- It will encourage new thinking about Australia and its place in the world and the contribution Muslims can make to help meet the challenges of the future.
